

Role for visitors notloggedinroleid

Users who are not logged in to the site will be treated as if they have this role granted to them at the site context. Guest is almost always what you want here, but you might want to create roles that are less or more restrictive. Things like creating posts still require the user to log in properly.

Default role for all users defaultuserroleid

All logged in users will be given the capabilities of the role you specify here, at the site level, in ADDITION to any other roles they may have been given. The default is the Guest role. Note that this will not conflict with other roles they have, it just ensures that all users can do something useful at the site level (eg read forum discussions, resources, etc).

Default role for users in a course defaultcourseroleid

Users who enrol in a course will be automatically assigned this role.

Auto-login guests autologinguests

Should visitors be logged in as guests automatically when entering courses with guest access?

Hide user fields hiddenuserfields

Select which user information fields you wish to hide from other users other than course teachers/admins. This will increase student privacy. Hold CTRL key to select multiple fields.
